Quaint Portraits of Stage People Taken Long Ago.

WHEN LILLIAN WAS THIN.

In the Old Days When Fanny Davenport Was Not Plump.

The Jersey Lily as a Girl—Madame Adeline Patti Thirty Years Ago—Edwin Booth at Twenty-eight.

It is never flattering to beauties of the day to look at pictures of themselves taken many years back. Perhaps it is the changes in the fashions or the styles of wearing the hair, but whether it is the beautiful woman does not like to see herself presented to the public attired in the style of a decade or two ago. With men it doesn't make much difference if they don't appear in clothes quite up to date.

Fanny Davenport is quite portly now, but Miss Coghlan was a member of her company and remembers the day that she was not plump. The picture shows her at the age of 3, and also shows that she was a very fat little girl. Her mother is holding her in her lap. The picture was taken more than thirty years ago—exactly how much more it would be impossible to say. Miss Fanny was an extremely pretty child, and the idol of her father, E. L. Davenport, an actor of great ability. He was a close friend of the late Edwin Booth, and that noted master of the stage had a great admiration for the theatrical talent of the elder Davenport. Miss Davenport wrote a play which she called Farewell, at the tender age of 10 years, and she acted the leading part, to the extreme delight of the neighboring children and her father.

Edwin Booth was a constant visitor at the Davenport house. He was fond of Miss Fanny, and it is related that he often used to sit near her at the children's table in the house in preference to dining with the adult members of the family at the more abundantly supplied table. The picture of Mr. Booth shows him at the age of 28, when his daughter Edwina, by the first wife, was scarcely more than a baby. The daughter is now Mrs. Grossman, and is the mother of a large family of interesting children. Mr. Booth's face in thirty years had changed comparatively little. It was more deeply lined at the time of his death, but the general expression was much the same.

The picture of Andrew Carnegie shows him at the age of 19 years. He was a sober young machinist in those days, and an iron foundry in Pittburgh, Pa. He was working twelve hours a day for $5 a week, and at night studying and evolving the plans which later on made him one of the richest men in the country. The only time he spent any money for personal enjoyment was when some good concert company visited the town. Then he would buy the cheapest seat in the auditorium, and drink in the music with ecstatic delight.

Chased a Prisoner.

Officer Dixon had an exciting chase along New High street yesterday. He saw Charles Johnson, a man who had been released from the city prison in the morning, begging on the street and arrested him. While waiting for the patrol wagon to arrive, Johnson, who is a powerfully built "hobo," broke loose and ran up Temple street and along New High. At last his wind gave out and Dixon was able to retake him. At the prison he was charged with vagrancy.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Burbank Theater.—This house last night was packed with a large and appreciative audience. It was the occasion of the first production of Confusion by the Dreyfus Company.

The play, which has three acts, was admirably performed, the one noticeable feature being the absence of the pauses and errors frequently incident to a first production.

The plot, which consists of a most ludicrous misunderstanding concerning an infant and a pug dog, kept the audience in one continual roar of laughter, and their first appearance in their famous attire in a state of hilarity whenever they appeared. E. Nannary and Effie Adams, the two servants, were very diverting as the baby was changed into a pug and vice-versa.

In the last act the power of hypnotism by the eye is demonstrated, between Mortimer Mumbleford and Mr. Cleaves as the doctor in such a way as to produce roars of laughter.

The acting was all that could be desired, and the audience dispersed feeling that they had witnessed one of the most amusing comedies so far presented in this city.

During the evening Frederick Warde dropped in and witnessed the second act. Mr. Warde greatly enjoyed the play and praised the personnel of the troupe.

Orpheum.—The regular weekly change of bill takes place tonight when a number of new star artists will appear in specialties of a novel nature and sterling merit. La Regaltonita and sisters are to make their first appearance in their famous fairy ball. This dancing trio bear a great reputation in Europe from where they were imported by Koster and Bial and Manager Walter. They danced for sixteen weeks at Koster and Bial's, coming direct from New York to the Orpheum circuit.

The bill presents an exceptionally strong array of musical features. Debur and Deburmont, the French operatic artists, will appear for the first time here. Their programme for tonight is as follows: Cavatina, Leeriava, from Trovatore, Mile Alice Debrimont, Ballad, Valentin, from Faust, M. Marius Debur, Grand Duo, Rigoleto, Mile, Alice Debrimont and M. Marius Debur. The Barba troupe, who made the hit of last week's shows by their artistic musical and comedy act, will be heard in new selections. Dolan and Lenhart put on a new burlesque, and Lillian Mason will present some of the newest popular descriptive and popular songs. The monkeys will continue through the week in their clever and amusing performance.

NO ADMITTANCE.

Reporters Not Allowed to See City Jail Prisoners.

A Herald reporter called at the police station yesterday and asked for permission to interview a member of the present chain gang confined in "Siberia."

Captain Roberts said that no one but Chief Glass could give the desired permission.

"Will you kindly telephone to Chief Glass and ask him to allow me to see the prisoner?" asked the scriber.

"You tell Mr. Bean, the police clerk, to do it," said the captain.

Clerk Bean refused to telephone saying, "I feel a delicacy about doing it when the captain is here."

Consequently the reporter could not get into "Siberia."

Burglars at Work.

Early last evening the saloon of James Lawson at 117 West Third street was entered by burglars. They got in through the back way by cutting the screen on the window and forcing the sash. No money was taken, because the coin was all in the safe, and the thieves had to be content with some cigars and whiskey. The police have no clue.

Practice and Theory.

Privy Councillor (annoyed at the barbarous way in which a number of cattle are being driven ashore with sticks from a transport recently landed)—Captain, I am Privy Councillor Schnauze, from Statzke, and I protest against this cruelty to animals. It is perfectly scandalous. On my return to Statzke, I will at once report your conduct!

Captain—My lady, leave the cattle alone! (The order is obeyed.) Now, Mr. Councillor, will you have the goodness to request the oxen to be so kind as to step on shore?

A severe rheumatic pain in the left shoulder had troubled Mr. J. H. Loper, a well-known druggist of Des Moines, Ia., for over six months. At times the pain was so severe he could not lift anything. With all he could do, he could not get rid of it until he applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm. "I only made three applications of it," he says, "and have since been free from all pain; he now recommends it to persons similarly afflicted. It is for sale by Off & Vaughn, Fourth and Spring streets, and C. F. Heinzmann, 222 North Main street, druggists.

Another picture, sadly out of date, as far as fashion counts, is that of Rose Coghlan. It was taken twenty years ago, when Rose Coghlan was a member of Lydia Thompson's burlesque troupe. She was considerably thinner then than now, but the face does not show the character that later years gave it.

Concerning bygone thinness, the picture of Lillian Russell is a good example. It shows the charming lady in the scanty costume she wore when she appeared at Tony Astor's too many years ago to mention. She sang ballads in those days and
